Summary of Legislation: (Amended) This bill establishes legislative districts for the House of Representatives and the Senate. This bill repeals the requirement that Indiana be divided into 99 House of Representatives districts with respect to elections held after November 4, 2002.

Effective Date: (Amended) July 1, 2001; November 5, 2002.

Explanation of State Expenditures: (Revised) The current statute calls for the reduction of the number of representatives from one hundred (100) to ninety-nine (99) which would result in a reduction of state expenditures beginning in FY 2003. The current salary of a representative is $11,600 per year. In addition, legislators receive $112 per diem for every day they are in session and $25 per diem for every day they are not in session. Legislators are also entitled to mileage reimbursement for one round trip to Indianapolis per week. This bill will retain the current number of representatives and the reduction of state expenditures will not occur. These expenses are paid from the General Fund appropriation to the House of Representatives.
